

Just Keep Pedaling

As I was watching my youngest daughter ride her bike in front of our house, a neighbor friend with a daughter about the same age approached asking, "How long did it take her to learn?" I responded, "It took her about half an hour to get the hang of it." "Would you mind teaching my daughter? She won't take direction from me." At first I thought he was kidding. Then I noticed by the look on his face that he was serious, so I said, "Sure." Before I finished the word he was off to get his daughter. As I have done with all three of my children, I started by explaining how it's all about balance and motion. The more you keep the bike in motion, the easier it will be to balance.

Yet another great business lesson! The more action taken, the more stability. The faster you peddle, the easier it is to steer, and the farther you will go, with the momentum maintaining the balance. The difficulties ensue when you slow down. You start to wobble and worry about crashing. Worse, if you stop, the energy needed to get started again might cause you think twice about all the things that could go wrong and never start again. This week get on the bike and start peddling. Stay in motion, looking forward and don't stop. You will find that by continuing to move you will get closer to your goal! It's as easy as riding a bike! Make this week count.
